They brought him down to Seez and after energetic treatment succeeded in reviving him. He walks today as if nothing had happened. This accident won for him the stripes of a chasseur of the first class. On one of his sleeves he wears, besides, a hunting horn won in a shooting contest last year. Not everybody has an orderly with such trimmings. Roger would have wished to be attached to Captain Larchey s company. The latter would gladly have taken him with him. But his list of officers was full and the newcomer was assigned to the Second Company, commanded by Captain Blanc-Coquand. The lieutenant of the company is busy taking care of a sprain he got in the winter maneuvers. He goes, therefore, very little to the exercises. Roger had anticipated responsibility. He gets it at once, more of it than he expected. During whole days he is the only officer in the company: Same date. It is delightful, when merely presiding at target practice, to criticize the theories given by the underofficers, to question the non-coms, or to give the company a lesson in bayonet fencing, in boxing, or in gymnastics. But what is less funny, is to have to command the company in a maneuver in double action, a thing which has happened to me twice. One has the commandant at one s back, one feels himself watched and his work picked to pieces, one feels small....
